

Nothing says low maintenance gardening like a ground cover. These are often the hardiest and most tolerant varieties in the garden. Not only do they cover large areas, but they are perfect between stepping stones or even in container gardens. Like any new planting they will need to be watered, weeded and maintained until they are established, but once they are, you have a nice carpet of plants needing minimal attention. The following is a list of our tried and true ground covers.
